IN AID OF ANIMAL RESCUE

SAVING ANIMALS AROUND THE WORLD

At International Animal Rescue we do exactly what our name says, we save animals from suffering around the world. We are building a brand new rescue and rehabilitation centre for orangutans in West Borneo, cutting free and caring for dancing bears in India, rescuing primates from animal traffickers in Indonesia and treating stray dogs and cats in developing countries. Wherever we can, we return rehabilitated animals to the wild but, if that's not possible, we give them a safe haven for life. We rely entirely on donations from the public to fund our work. Without your support we are powerless: with it, we can make a world of difference to the lives of animals in desperate need.

PROTECTING THE ORANGUTAN

The future of the orangutan is under threat. Without urgent action this species could be the first of the great apes to become extinct. Its survival is being jeopardised by greed and ignorance – and for those of us who do care about these precious animals, there's no time to waste

Our temporary rescue centre in Ketapang, West Kalimantan, West Borneo continued to provide treatments and expert care for rescued orangutans, particularly infants whose mothers had been killed and their babies sold as pets.

However, the limited facilities at the centre made it impossible for the team to take in the many adult orangutans being kept in captivity and desperately in need of help. Housing at the current site is full to capacity and this situation won't change until the new rescue and rehabilitation centre is built.

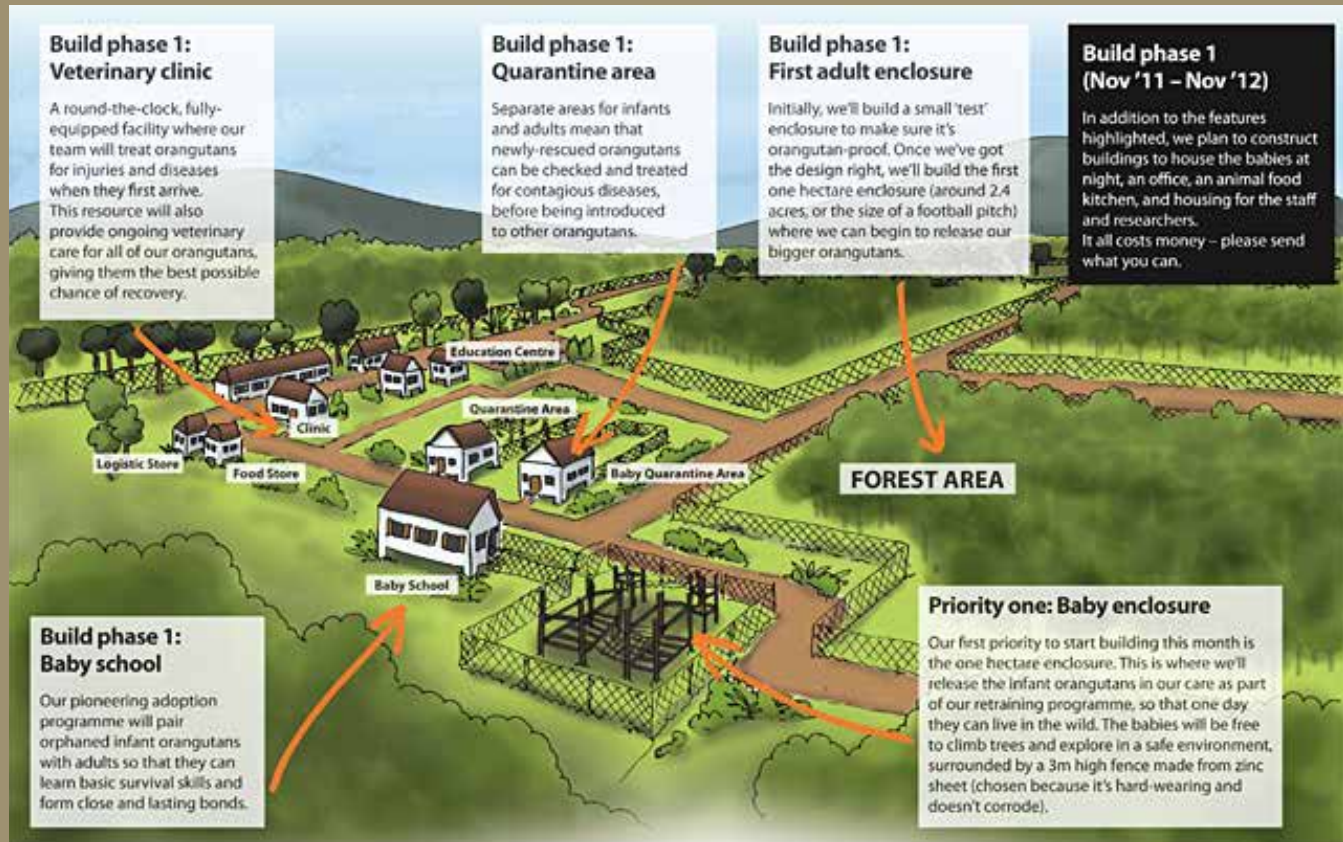

Work on the project began at the beginning of 2012 – the final confirmation that our vision of creating a first-class orangutan rehabilitation centre facility is more than just a dream!

ORANGUTAN REHABILITATION CENTRE

In 2010, thanks to support from a generous donor, IAR was able to purchase 24 hectares (60 acres) of land in Ketapang, Western Borneo, not far from our existing emergency rescue centre. Planning permission was granted for a rehabilitation facility that would house up to 100 orangutans at a time and architect's plans were drawn up and approved. The building project was put out to tender in August 2011 and construction of the perimeter fencing and access roads commenced in October.

ORANGUTAN REHABILITATION CENTRE, WEST BORNEO, INDONESIA

In February 2012 we signed a contract with the builders to begin work on Build Phase 1. Facilities at the completed centre will include large quarantine pens for new arrivals; a fully-equipped veterinary clinic; an education centre; indoor accommodation and an outdoor play area for babies and infants and spacious forested enclosures where rescued orangutans can develop the natural skills they will need to survive back in the wild.

URGENT APPEAL

International Animal Rescue is the only organisation which has been authorised by the Indonesian government to rescue and rehabilitate orangutans in this area of Borneo. We not only rescue animals in danger but also play an active role in the conservation movement, with long-term strategic goals for the future of orangutans in the region.

The project is an ambitious and costly one but it could save the lives of countless animals in desperate need, as well as contributing to the survival of the species as a whole. At International Animal Rescue we are determined to do all we can to help the orangutans of Western Borneo.

We now have everything in place to begin Build Phase 1, however we are still significantly short of funds to get these priority areas (as shown in the illustration above) built, manned, equipped and up and running.
